

Take Heaven's Hands

What's really important is the way the people relate to the Divine in their hearts. By "the Divine" we mean God, and celestial beings of all kinds. The quality of every relationship depends on our primary orientation to the beloved.

The Divine is more than a source of boons, protection, powers, or troubles, which is how most people relate to God and heavenly beings.

That orientation doesn't allow for a truly satisfying relationship with Divinity.

Love is the REAL answer for the success of every relationship. Every relationship rises or falls on the way we relate, on the attitudes and feelings of heart. The relationship to God/celestial beings is no exception.

This article is to encourage people to relate to God and celestial beings with sincere love. When we do that, we unlock the huge potential of those relationships (just as love unlocks the potential of human relationships).

Heaven is filled with real beings. And those beings don't exist just to be sources of information about the afterlife, the mysteries of the universe, the realms of heaven, and the like. The heavenly entities I have met don't just have wisdom, they have hearts. Yes, and they love. Really love. With supreme loyalty.

Friends, I'll tell you truly: though the agents of heaven love to guide and heal, they love to love most of all. And they would much prefer to be real friends to people on earth. Yes! Friends to people like you and me.

I ask you to take this seriously. You know by now I'm not a woo-woo new age type. I'm a very down-to-earth fellow, and I tell it like it is. So believe me when I say, people can establish actual relationships with that which is beyond this world. Read what I have written here, and look at the evidence I've collected for this article. It should be obvious, if you see and feel the videos presented here* that I, for one, have done exactly that. You can, too.

The informative relationship

It's not that celestial beings are unheard of these days. Many of them are well-known, and even have big "followings." All of these are popular in the new age:

- Advice and information from ascended masters
- Goddess worship
- Avatar worship (Jesus/Buddha/Krishna/Mohammed, etc).
- Listening to the still small voice.

Many people have learned certain information from these heavenly sources that was, at least to some degree, helpful, or even enlightening. And certainly, many have received useful guidance through the still small voice. But one thing that's obvious is this: usually, in relationship terms, none of those arrangements are very close.

So, while many people these days “believe in angels” and are familiar with a variety of celestial beings, few people know the reality of relationship to agents of heaven. We look at heavenly beings narrowly, as sources of information, or even of healing. But we don't recognize much of their reality, their being, their heart. It's almost like when a woman complains, “You just want me for one thing. You don't see the real me!” The main difference is, the agents of heaven don't tend to complain.

When considered in its efficacy, functionality, and fullness as a relationship, the mere provision of information is both limited and limiting. Relationship is weak if it includes very little of the beings who are “relating” in such minimal ways. Surely, when it comes to the relationship between humanity and Divinity, the opportunity exists for something much greater, and much more satisfying all around. How about a close relationship, built upon heart exchange, love exchange, not just data exchange, and not just begging for this or that favor. We need a higher quality of contact if we are to satisfy the heart of any of the participants involved.

Angels are people too

But people automatically tend to rule out relationships with heavenly beings. Not only do the celestials seem to be more challenging to contact than our human associates, but they also seem to be “out of our league.” It just doesn't occur to us that relationship with them is really even an option.

In humanity's defense, it's true that the agents of heaven are subtle. They lack bodies. It can be difficult for them to punch into this world clearly enough to deliver a clear, direct, unmodified communication.

But think of it this way: Just because beings are subtle, it doesn't mean they don't have any heart. And it doesn't mean they don't deserve love.

- Just because an entity is refined doesn't mean that it's impersonal, much less heartless.
- Just because an entity is refined doesn't mean it doesn't love you personally.
- Just because an entity is refined doesn't mean you can't love it personally, in such a way as to benefit both of you.

Being a celestial being is, in some respects, like being a black man. How can you hold that against him? He can't help it; that's the way he was born!

"Why does my color black make me a lesser man?"

—Stevie Wonder

Similarly, if a being is refined, that's the way it is. It doesn't mean you can't love it and it can't love you. You shouldn't count it out, like the guy who doesn't dare ask a certain woman out because he thinks she's too beautiful. That story has a very sad ending, because they both end up sitting home alone. Nobody asks her out, because everyone's intimidated by her. What a terrible irony! What a total waste!

*Love
that's my heartache
my heartfelt.
I've got love and
I've got time.
They party down
and after the bashes
they call me to clean up.
And I do,
again and again.
But I'm a live-in at heart
not a temporary.
My dreams are like the dreams of any other
Kelly Girl:
a permanent position.*

What I want people to consider is the possibility of sincere, heartfelt relationship between humanity and Divinity, in various forms. The reality is, there are many other things besides information that can be communicated between heaven and earth. The real stuff, the better stuff, is less about brain, and more about heart.

Showing the invisible

When I speak of a closer walk with God, I know whereof I speak. Divinity and Divine agents have come to me, not as sources of data, or even as sources of personal guidance, but as love, in the spirit of friendship, intimacy, close relationship. Clearly, that is not mediumship in the ordinary sense, as it is ordinarily employed. Nor is it the typical estranged relationship of religious tradition (in which God is conceived as a great-but-distant God; and man is conceived as a lowly creature who is unworthy to relate to God closely, in intimate terms). It is the expression of relationship, not simply the provision of information. It is an exchange of heart. This, I seek to show, to clarify, to encourage.

But things of spirit are invisible to the eye. How do you show heart? The heart of all relationships is unseen. In one sense, that's wonderful news, because it means that you don't need a medium—you just need a heart—to give your heart; to speak from your heart. When you do that, the Heart of All will always listen. And there the relationship is.

But at the same time, there is a need to show what is possible, to help those who are ignorant or skeptical about what is possible. So the challenge is, how can we substantiate things of spirit on the earth plane without some sort of external evidence, some appearance? That's where it helps for spiritual agencies to communicate in human bodies.

Bringing Divine love into manifestation (and into relationship)

I invite you to look at these videos. In them, my wife, Asha, and my friend, Mati, are communicating Divinity to me and to others. It is truly amazing. Yet certainly, if you open yourself and feel, you'll realize that what you are seeing is real.

What you will see and hear on the videos is a real being from “another” world—one of several with whom I have relationships. And you will experience that this is something very different than the usual channeled messages. The most important difference is this: the heavenly being is quite obviously loving here, on this plane, through a physical body. You will feel not just the transmission of wisdom, but the exchange of love.

And you will notice that the love is not just impersonal—agape-like—but actually quite personal. And that, friends, is something I encourage you to deeply consider. Consider the possibility that you can have a unique, personal, soul-satisfying relationship with agents of heaven.

So, if you will permit me to do so, I will begin to introduce you to the wonderful possibility of relationship between heaven and earth.

Real relationships can happen

We all want a close relationship to anyone we love—heavenly beings included! And what about the desire of God and heavenly agents to love us personally? They feel the same! For those mutual wishes to be fulfilled, we need to acknowledge the heart of Divinity and the heart of humanity as one Heart, and the desire of man and God as one common desire.

What interests heaven greatly is substantial relationship—with people. People like you and me. All of us. After all, in the context of relationship, there is huge upside potential. Not only can information be given, but love can be exchanged, and true intimacy can be established. And in the ongoing relationship, there can be ongoing support, and an unlimited ongoing unfolding revelation of the beauty and scope of Being.

And the agents of heaven can be great friends, best you can imagine. That's because great friendship begins where egotism ends, right?

May the Truth be known! The heavenly agents love you. They can, they do, and they will. Here are God's own words:

This is My express purpose—to propose to My Loves, My little loves, great loves, this marriage. We have this marriage, but it awaits acceptance by all the ones—the majority of each one. There is a face of love that I yearn for and know in commitment to Me, in willingness to surrender to the love that I am, and to be directed by My living guidance. As it is, no one has the express purpose that I have, to know Me, to be with Me. There is one here, Christ, who knew Me so well, he embodied Me in all his activities. This, then, is the way to live with Me, and this is what I propose to all of My children, My ones.

But if you want to explore the living potential of relations with heavenly agents, you must take them seriously. You must be genuinely open. Then—and only then—you can find out for yourself.

God will, if we will

God will enter far into the human condition. But how can God really effectively come here and satisfy our heart, if we will not embrace God? We have a necessary role in it, so it's us who needs a good talking to. God is not the one that needs convincing. We must give the agents of heaven a chance, by opening our hearts to them.

Do heavenly beings feel out of reach to you? Any angelic form has a purity that really isn't touchable in the world, and still be what it really is. But they are not beyond the reach of love. Communication is vastly improved by openness, and by the kind of attunement that, generally, only love provides. Love closes the distance; love erases the sense of difference. Only because we've held back have we failed to make the connection, and prove it to ourselves. Let yourself feel the love you have that belongs to them, and all will be proven.

Realize that you are worthy to be loved by, and to love, that which is of heaven. Hold out your hand to the most beautiful beings of heaven, and don't be surprised if they take it, because they will.

Invitation

I implore you to open yourself to those who are of heaven. Any name who you know and love, call on them. They will answer you in an instantly. They will bless you, and be with you, love and guide you. Your job is only to love them back. Such is relationship.
